

Reported speech chain stories (consequences)

Instructions: Write in the gap below and fold the paper so that the next person cannot see what you have written. Pass it to the next person in a clockwise direction. Do the same with the one you receive. Continue until you have filled the last gap in one, then pass it one more time and read out the one you receive with your partner. One person should take the part of the man and one person should read out the parts of the woman, all converted into direct speech. Does any of the dialogue make any sense?
