

Meeting people problems roleplays

You meet someone again. You are sure you have met the person before but you can't remember anything about them.

You meet someone after a long time and ask them about how they have been but everything they say is bad news

You've been talking to someone for 10 minutes when a colleague comes over and joins the conversation. You can't remember either person's name.

You need to introduce someone with an unusual foreign name that you can't pronounce

Everyone hands over business cards but you have forgotten yours.

The person introducing themselves is speaking too quietly

You don't want to tell the person you are meeting which company you work for