Academic emails homework

Send your teacher an email for which a reply from that person would really be useful.
Suggested topics

- Advice about an application/ Asking for feedback on an application
- Advice about studying abroad
- Advice on a paper/ essay/ dissertation you are writing or thinking of writing
- Advice on getting published (perhaps with a link to where you want to be published)
- Advice on one aspect of academic writing, e.g. titles or references
- An enquiry about something you didn't (fully) understand in class
- Asking for feedback on some aspects of something you have written (probably attaching it)
- Asking for more details about something the teacher presented/ said
- Asking how to catch up with missed lessons and/ or homework
- Asking the teacher to clear up an apparent contradiction (e.g. between what this teacher said and what someone else wrote or said, or between two things the teacher said)
- Explanation of a language point
- Following up something you said to the teacher
- Self-study advice
- Something related to a future lesson or course

----------cut----------

Academic emails homework

Send your teacher an email for which a reply from that person would really be useful.
Suggested topics

- Advice about an application/ Asking for feedback on an application
- Advice about studying abroad
- Advice on a paper/ essay/ dissertation you are writing or thinking of writing
- Advice on getting published (perhaps with a link to where you want to be published)
- Advice on one aspect of academic writing, e.g. titles or references
- An enquiry about something you didn't (fully) understand in class
- Asking for feedback on some aspects of something you have written (probably attaching it)
- Asking for more details about something the teacher presented/ said
- Asking how to catch up with missed lessons and/ or homework
- Asking the teacher to clear up an apparent contradiction (e.g. between what this teacher said and what someone else wrote or said, or between two things the teacher said)
- Explanation of a language point
- Following up something you said to the teacher
- Self-study advice
- Something related to a future lesson or course

downloaded from https://tefltastic.com