Intermediate functions review games

A: Extreme functions

Compete to say one of the things below. You might need to set up the situation, e.g. decide what you are thanking people for. Continue getting more extreme for as long as you can, stop when you give up or are starting to get less extreme, discuss which is probably best in real life, then do the same for other situations in the list.

- The longest thank you/ The most extreme thank you
- The deepest apology
- The best reason for the bad thing that you did
- The most helpful offer
- The most persuasive invitation
- The politest request
- The most emotional farewell/ The longest farewell
- The politest disagreement
- The strongest disagreement
- The strongest agreement
- The politest interruption of your partner's story
- The greatest number of polite interruptions of your partner's one minute story
- The politest turning down of an invitation/ The best reason for turning down an invitation
- The politest refusal to help/ The best reason for refusing to help
- The most enthusiastic greeting/ The friendliest greeting
- The best advice for the problem that your partner tells you

B: Situational functions

Use as many of the functions on the next page as you can in one of the following situations, taking a card or ticking it off the list as you use it. The person who has used the most in that situation wins, then start again with a new situation. If anyone uses the same function again, the language must be different each time.
