Reported speech chain stories (consequences)

Instructions

Write in the gap below and fold the paper so that the next person cannot see what you have written. Pass it to the next person in a clockwise direction. Do the same with the one you receive. Continue until you have filled the last gap in one of the stories, then pass it one more time.

Read out the one that you have received with your partner with you as the man and your partner as the woman, converting what was said into direct speech.

Pass it one more time and do the same with the one you receive.

Optional: Do the same with other dialogues.

Discuss as a class what makes sense and what doesn't make sense about each dialogue.

downloaded from https://tefltastic.com

Write in the gap below and fold the paper so that the next person cannot see what you have written. Pass it to the next person in a clockwise direction.

A man and a woman met in _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

He asked her if _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

She answered that _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

He asked her what _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

She asked him why he had _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

He said that he _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

She said that she was _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

He asked when she would _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

She said that she had never _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

He asked her to _____

……fold this after completing the part above and before passing it to the next person……

She _____ him

Pass this story to the next group for them to unfold it and read it out.

downloaded from https://tefltastic.com